

MATT TURPIN
PRESIDENT & CEO ZENTECH

Matt Turpin is President and CEO of Zentech, a premier electronics contract manufacturing company located in Baltimore, Maryland. Matt is responsible for the strategic direction, customer experience and growth of Zentech and led a management buyout of the founders in 2012. He has over 30 years of industry experience in Product Development, Manufacturing and Quality. Matt has a BS in Business from the University of Maryland and has been with Zentech since 2006. Prior to Zentech, Matt was Vice President of Product Development and Manufacturing for Spirent Communications – a global provider of network service assurance solutions.

Zentech provides comprehensive supply chain and manufacturing services to Medical, Consumer, Defense and Communications markets and has been in business since 1998. It is located in a 42,000 square foot facility in Windsor Mill and employs approximately 120 people. Recently it has had success re-shoring work previously performed in Asia as well as transitioning work destined to be performed in Asia. Zentech's engineering teams offer a full range of hardware and embedded software services from initial product design, compliance engineering and testing through sustaining engineering and support.